Library plans next strategy

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Faced with a mixed decision from voters, library board members will meet tonight to determine whether they will petition the courts to allow contiguous precincts outside the city to join the newly created library district on a precinct-only basis, Librarian Robert Stack said.

City voters approved a proposal to create a library district Tuesday. They also agreed that much of the area served by School District 9 could be accepted into the library district, but voters outside the city declined to join the newly-created district.

Court approval is necessary before such a precinct-by-precinct move could be implemented, library officials said. They believe that precincts whose boundaries touch the city limits might be eligible to join the library district under current law.

The proposal for District 9 areas outside the city (and outside Pontoon Beach and Madison) to join the new library district failed by only 23 votes of the 1,305 cast, according to unofficial totals from the county clerk. There were 641 (49.1 percent) for and 664 (50.9) against joining the library district.

Within Granite City, 2,398 (72.5 percent) voted to allow annexation of the outlying areas; 908 (27.5 percent) voted against for a total of 3,306 votes cast on the issue.

On the question of conversion to a library district, 1,699 (52.9 percent) voted yes and 1,488 (47.1 percent) voted no for a total of 3,187 votes on the issue.

Precinct totals on the annexation question in the outlying area (total ballots in parentheses) are:

Nameki 1: No votes cast on the issue (177).

Nameki 2: No votes cast on the issue (257).

Nameki 3: 24 yes, 51 no (71).

Nameki 5: 67 yes, 74 no (157).

Nameki 7: 20 yes, 10 no (306).
Nameki 8: 12 yes, 19 no (54).

Chouteau 5: 49 yes, 76 no (145).
Chouteau 6: 76 yes, 12 no (237).

Not all primary voters cast a vote on the library issue.

Creation of a library district means that the library is now removed from control of the city of Granite City and library board members will be elected by voters, rather than be appointed by the Granite City mayor as they are now.

The first election will likely be held in April 1991, Stack said. Until then, the current board members will remain as custodians of the library district.

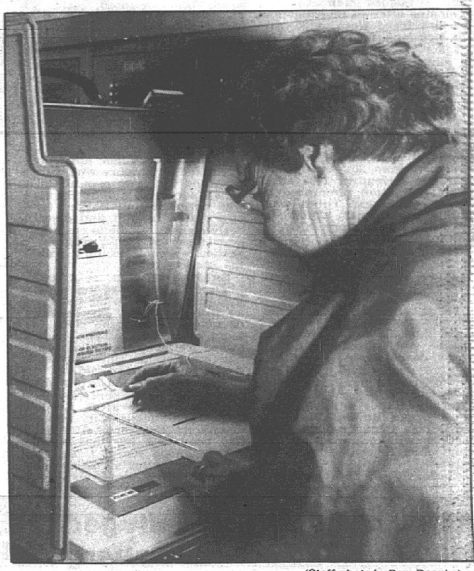

The election results leave unanswered a question that has plagued the library and School District 9 for months: whether a library bookmobile may legally serve students who reside outside the library's tax base.

That question will be looked at carefully, Stack said.

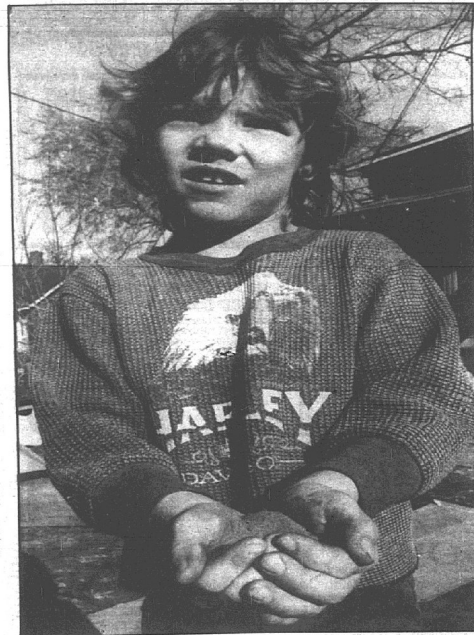

Previously, the library board and school officials had discussed the possibility of the school district paying a fee to the library for bookmobile service.

Currently, District 9 students receive bookmobile service through a special government grant, Project PLUS, that allows libraries to serve people outside their own tax areas. That grant expires in June.

Turnout of voters was very poor in Madison County — only 19 percent of registered voters cast ballots.

EPA's figures won't add up scientifically, expert says

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is being "almost intellectually dishonest" when it sets a soil lead level of 500 parts per million or greater as sole criteria for determining a health hazard, in the opinion of an industry expert.

And area mayors are "right on target" when demanding blood lead studies of local residents before cleaning up the Taracorp lead pile in Granite City, according to Daniel Vornberg, environmental manager for the Doe Run Company's Herculanum (Mo.) Lead Smelter.

Vornberg is the industry member of the international Society of Environmental Geochemistry and Health task force which has spent two years preparing guidelines on lead in soil.

He said the scientific community is on the threshold of being able to establish a cause/effect formula for soil lead levels to blood lead levels. The results of the task force's study are due to be released in July.

"Until you can predict over and over again what (blood lead level) people will have based on the level of lead in the soil, you're not being honest when you set a number," Vornberg said.

But the EPA's Brad Bradley, project manager for the $25 million Superfund Taracorp lead contamination cleanup plan, said the cutoff level of 500 ppm is not going to change, no matter what a study of blood lead might show.

"A blood study is under consideration," Bradley said. "But we're not going to use it to set the cleanup level. ... It's not useful to us."

Bradley said a blood lead study would "only be useful" in establishing how much contamination has already taken place and not in establishing future risk.

"There is nothing wrong with the EPA wanting to reduce risk," Vornberg said. "But reduce risk based on science. The (soil lead) numbers they're using don't necessarily fit what current studies (See LEAD EXPERT, Page 10A)

Child: 'Naw, I don't eat dirt'

GRANITE CITY — Seven-year-old Richard Berney looked at the handful of dirt a photographer had asked him to hold.

"Do you think you eat that much dirt a year?" he was asked.

"Naw, I don't eat dirt," he said.

"I do. I eat it all the time," bragged 10-year-old Joe Sittin.

Seeing that Richard didn't believe him, Joe added: "Mostly at night, when nobody else can see me."

Richard and Joe were playing in the alley between the 1700 blocks of Delmar Avenue and Cleveland Boulevard — near the middle of the Taracorp lead contamination cleanup area proposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Along with their neighbors — 8-year-old Jesse Lee Thompson, 7-year-old Chris Caldwell and 9-year-old Barbara Sittin — they were turning backflips and somersaults on the middle of the alley was waiting for the trashman. Parents watched from nearby.

The photographer interrupted their play to ask

Richard to pose with 75 grams of dirt — the amount the EPA model presumes a child eats in a year. That figure has been banded about recently as part of continuing developments in the Taracorp case.

The children said they play together outside from the time they get home from school at Prather Elementary until dark.

"Even after dark, sometimes," Richard said.

"Unless I'm grounded," Barbara said.

All of them had heard about lead in the dirt in their yards and looked toward the prospect of heavy equipment digging up their yards as an adventure.

Deciding which yards will be removed, and how deeply, is one of the EPA's next steps, according to Brad Bradley, EPA cleanup project manager.

The decision will be based on soil samples, he said, and not all the yards in the area shown on past maps will be torn up.

It's also possible, he said, some yards not included on current maps will be removed.

Bradley said the soil testing, and its accompanying design period, should take about a year.

Man found guilty of 1986 beauty salon robbery

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — After three years awaiting trial for the 1986 robbery of a Granite City beauty salon and the sexual assault of one of its employees, Alexander Michael Traina, 45, of Melrose Park was found guilty Tuesday.

Traina stipulated to a bench trial and guilty finding by Circuit Judge Edward Ferguson. Sentencing is expected within 30 days, according to Assistant State's Attorney Rich Rybak. Rybak said he will ask for a prison term of 30 years.

Traina robbed a beauty salon and its patrons in August 1986. He then sexually assaulted one of the employees.

One of the robbery victims was a patron, Joyce Harris, wife of then-Granite City Police Chief Bill Harris.

Traina was arrested in May 1987 in Hoffman Estates, Ill., and was transferred to the Madison County Jail based on Granite City warrants. He has remained in the jail since that time — nearly three years.

According to Police Chief Don

Knight, who was the original investigating officer, Traina became a suspect in the case after he told a hitchhiker in Alabama he had committed an armed robbery in Illinois.

Knight said that information was sent out through the Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation and, following his arrest in Hoffman Estates, Traina was identified by the robbery victims, using a photo lineup.

"I'm glad for the (assault) victim. It's finally over with," Knight said.

According to Rybak, the delay in bringing the case to trial resulted after a plea-bargain agreement fell through.

Traina, who faces charges in St. Louis County for a similar robbery and sexual assault at a beauty salon, in the plea bargain entered a guilty plea in Madison County, with a sentence of 30 years, with the stipulation he be allowed to serve the sentence for the Missouri crime concurrently.

"It was an arrangement made by another prosecutor," Rybak said. "... There was some delay while they were trying to make arrangements with Missouri and, eventually, when the arrangements couldn't be made, he was allowed to withdraw his plea.

"But after he withdrew the plea, it never got on the docket. I guess it kind of got lost in the clerk's office."

Rybak said Traina still faces the charges in Missouri and, after he is sentenced in Illinois, will be held until Missouri authorities pick him up.

Traina is reportedly also a suspect in similar beauty salon robberies and sexual assaults in Georgia, Tennessee and Florida.

Parolee Teller going back to prison again

By Andy Sloring
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Ricky Teller is headed back to prison 16 months after an investigation got him freed from a 20-year sentence for armed robbery.

Teller, 37, of Madison pleaded guilty March 15 to possession of a controlled substance (codeine) and was sentenced to two years by Madison County Circuit Judge Andy Mateosian.

The guilty plea means Teller must serve seven months remaining on his robbery sentence. He was given a sentence reduction from 20 years to 14 years in November 1988 after an investigation unearthed a witness who said Teller was with her on June 12, 1981, when the J & J Liquor store in Granite City was robbed.

The investigation was begun at the request of then State's Attorney Dick Allen, who left office less than two weeks after Teller was freed.

Teller served 7½ years of the robbery sentence. The new sentence and the time remaining on the old sentence will be served concurrently.

Teller will probably be eligible for parole again in about one year, said Assistant State's Attorney Randy Massey, but the Prisoner Review Board of the Illinois Department of Corrections will ultimately determine when Teller is eligible for parole.

Currently in the Madison

County Jail in Edwardsville, Teller will be transferred to Graham Correctional Center in Hillsboro, Ill., as soon as paperwork is completed, said a spokesman for the Department of Corrections.

Granite City police confiscated three codeine pills from Teller Jan. 22 after Teller allegedly pulled a knife on an East St. Louis man at National Food Store. He was charged with aggravated assault and assault. Pleading innocent Jan. 23, he was released on his own recognizance.

On March 4 Teller allegedly interfered with police who were arresting two other men at Goldie's Tavern, 1800 State St. He was arrested and booked for aggravated assault and disorderly conduct. While in custody, he was served with a drug possession warrant resulting from the January arrest.

On June 12, 1981, at J & J Liquors, a man wearing a ski mask held a gun to the head of a store clerk's 14-year-old daughter to force the clerk to hand over money. The clerk swore Teller was the robber, but that was the only solid evidence, officials have said.

Teller was freed from the armed robbery sentence in November 1988 after Linda Miller of Fairmont City told a county investigator that Teller had been with her that night. Circuit Judge Philip J. Rarik ordered Teller's sentence reduced from 20 to 14 years.

No action yet on federal judge for Alton

By Jason Moody
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — A bill that would add a federal judge to the Southern District of Illinois, possibly creating a seat in Alton, has so far failed to attract the support of federal lawmakers outside the state.

The district's three judges have said they would consider locating a fourth seat in Alton if the new position is created, a move that could prevent the federal courthouse on 501 Belle St. from being centralized at the East St. Louis federal building.

But the legislation to add a fourth judge, introduced in October by House Minority Leader

Robert Michel, R-Iowa, and Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Chicago, continues to languish in committee. The House Judicial Committee has not scheduled a hearing or taken any other action on the bill.

"We're still in the process of collecting cosponsors for the bill, but so far they are all from within the state," said Missy Tessier, press aide for Michel.

Michel said he introduced the bill, which would also create three other judgeships in Illinois, to address the problem of a federal court case backlog in Illinois.

"The problem of case overload in Illinois is so severe it is reaching crisis proportions," Michel said.

Illinois' three regional federal court districts are some of the busiest in the nation, he said.

David Sellars, a spokesman for the Administrative Office of the Courts, which represents the judicial branch of the federal government, said Illinois needs more federal judges but that case overload is a problem across the nation.

"We support legislation creating 173 new judgeships throughout the country because we know it is a problem," said Sellars. "But we don't think it should be resolved on a piecemeal, state-by-state basis."

The Michel bill would create one permanent and one temporary judgeship in the Northern District of Illinois, and one temporary judgeship in each of the Southern and Central districts. A temporary judge serves for five years, at which time Congress has the option of making the seat permanent.

Police chief refuses alleged $500 bribe to dismiss charge

EAST CARONDELET — A 28-year-old East Carondelet man was released from jail last week following charges of bribing a public official and obstructing a police officer.

Norman D. McMillan allegedly offered Thursday to give $500 to East Carondelet Police Chief Skip Mize in exchange for his release and the dismissal of battery charges filed by his girlfriend.

Mize declined to name the 22-year-old girlfriend, who lives in St. Louis. Mize said McMillan was released from St. Clair County Jail on Friday after posting $5,000 bail.

Battery charges were later filed against McMillan.

Jail fires lead to punishment

"They (inmates) apologized and said it was a misunderstanding between me and them," Greer said.

Flood defeats Allen for state committee

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Although he carried the vote in three counties, former State's Attorney Dick Allen of Granite City was defeated by St. Clair County Assessor Sam Flood in the race for state Democratic central committeeman in the 21st Congressional District.

The final unofficial tally was 15,364 to 11,968.

Allen carried Madison County 52 percent (7,974) to 46 percent (7,341), although Flood edged Allen in Quad City area precincts 3,158 to 3,068.

Flood drew 1,659 votes to Allen's 1,487 in Granite City precincts.

Allen also carried Montgomery County (569 to 456) and Clinton County (271 to 218).

Flood carried St. Clair County (6,769 to 2,666) and Bond County (580 to 557).

In Allen's bid for Democratic precinct committeeman in Granite City Precinct 17 against Barbara Hodges, the final unofficial vote was a 56 to 56 tie. If the tie stands, the race will be decided by a coin toss.

Judy Whitaker, a Granite City alderman running unopposed for Democratic state central committeewoman, got 13,298 votes in Madison County.

Quinn takes county; Netsch, Edgar win

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Patrick Quinn carried Madison County in the Democratic race for state treasurer Tuesday with 51.7 percent of the vote (7,775 votes) to 48.3 percent (7,271) for Peg Breslin.

With 99 percent of Illinois precincts reporting Quinn led Breslin 435,447 to 417,703.

Breslin had the endorsement of the state party organization. With 99 percent of Illinois precincts counted, Dawn Netsch had 394,828 votes for the Democratic nomination for state comptroller.

Shawn Collins had 228,796; Woody Bowman 131,948 and Bill Sarto 73,128.

Netsch, the endorsed candidate, carried 43.3 percent (6,678) of the votes in Madison County, followed by 24.9 percent (3,488) for Collins, 17.1 percent (2,397) for Bowman and 14.7 percent (2,073) for Sarto.

On the Republican side, Jim Edgar won the Republican nomination for governor. With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Edgar had 480,070 votes, 63 percent of the total. Steve Baer received 255,852 and Robert Marshall had 28,481 votes.

Edgar received only 50.8 percent (5,297) of the votes in Madison County.

Henkhaus tops Shaffer

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Incumbent County Treasurer Michael "Mike" Henkhaus was an easy winner in the Democratic primary Tuesday. He beat challenger Max Shaffer with 71 percent of the vote, 11,490 to 4,665.

All of Venice Township and most Granite City precincts voted heavily for Henkhaus.

Shaffer did slightly better in Nameoki and Chouteau townships, but failed to carry a single precinct in the Quad City area.

Republican John Shimkus ran unopposed and got 5,119 votes countywide, out of 25,425 ballots cast.

Henkhaus said he was gratified by his 71 percent winning margin. "What the hell can I say, I'm really excited."

"As I did this time, I'll run on my record again in the fall. I'm confident that people are very well satisfied with what I and my staff have been able to accomplish with this office."

In unopposed Democratic countywide races, incumbent County Clerk Evelyn Bowles drew 15,787 votes, incumbent Sheriff Bob Church received 15,654 votes and incumbent Regional School Superintendent Harry A. Briggs drew 15,145 votes.

In the 56th District, incumbent State Sen. Sam Vadalabene garnered 12,431 votes. Incumbent State Rep. Sam Wolf drew 8,159 votes in the 11th District. Both are Democrats.

Republican Wally Gorski, unopposed for nomination for state senator in the 56th District, drew 3,234 votes. He will face Vadalabene in November.

No Republican filed for county clerk, sheriff, regional superintendent of schools or state representative.

Stack's challenge falls short

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

EDWARDSVILLE — Nicholas Byron, Edward Ferguson and Philip Kardis won Democratic nominations Tuesday for 3rd Circuit Court judgeships. They now serve as circuit judges by appointment.

Byron of Edwardsville got 55 percent of the votes to beat challenger Dan Stack of Highland. The totals were: Byron 9,225 and Stack 7,483.

Byron will run in November for the judicial position formerly held by Horace Calvo of Granite City. Calvo was elected to the Illinois Supreme Court in 1988.

Stack, a former Granite City alderman, did well in the Quad City area, getting 3,211 votes to Byron's 3,477.

Stack carried Granite City Township 1,865 to 1,417. Byron narrowly carried Nameoki Township (686 to 671) and took Chouteau Township by a more comfortable margin (520 to 441).

But Byron easily led Stack in Venice Township, 854 to 234. Ferguson, running unopposed, received 13,936 votes in the Democratic primary to fill Philip J. Rarick's former seat on the 3rd Circuit bench.

DAN STACK gives a concession speech at St. Gregory's Hall in Granite City after defeat by judicial incumbent Nicholas Byron.

Kardis, of Alton, got 13,674 votes to gain nomination for the judgeship formerly held by Charles W. Chapman. Chapman and Rarick were elected as appellate judges in 1988. There were no Republican judicial candidates.

GRANITE CITY — The closest primary race for a seat on the Madison County Board in the Quad City area was between Democrats Morris Miles and Donald Hamilton in District 16.

Incumbent Miles defeated challenger Hamilton 51 percent (519) of the vote to 49 percent

(497) in the unofficial totals.

Miles, who is also the Chouteau Township supervisor, and Hamilton had both campaigned heavily on the issue of solid waste management.

Hamilton, a Granite City Steel laboratory employee, had called himself the environmental candidate and urged extensive recycling. Miles had said landfills must remain under county control.

In the District 25 Democratic race, incumbent Donald Rea overwhelmed Louis "Cookie" Zezz with 67 percent (642) to 33 percent (319). Rea, also a Ponton Beach trustee, had promised to oppose any new property tax increases.

Zezzoff had cited tax reform for senior citizens and board redistricting among concerns.

Incumbent Frank Laub of Granite City was unopposed in District 19 and got 732 votes.

Nelson Hagnauer of Granite City, Madison County Board chairman, unopposed in District 20, received 888 votes.

Incumbent Vasil Etimoff of Granite City was unopposed in District 21 and received 643.

There were no Republican candidates in local districts.

Tie highlights precinct committeeman races

By Andy Siering

GRANITE CITY — Local Democratic committeeman races Tuesday were highlighted by a tie vote in Precinct 17.

Former Madison County State's Attorney Dick Allen, who led in Madison County while losing his race for state Democratic central committeeman in the 21st Congressional District, could manage only a tie for the precinct-level position in his home neighborhood. Allen and Barbara K. Hodges each got 56 votes.

By law, if the tie stands following canvassing, the race will be decided by a coin toss.

Gertrude Barkley garnered 82 votes to Paul Fisk's 58 in Precinct 13. Fisk is a Granite City alderman.

Other Granite City committeeman races:

•Precinct 10: Hollis Donaldson got 83 votes to Steve Ortiz's 63.

•11: David Harrison received 61 votes to Rosser McGee's 23.

•15: Glenn Romine got 72 votes to Earl Tucker's 67.

•16: County Democratic Chairman Bill Harrison got 92 votes to Bob Porter's 78.

Four Nameoki Township Democratic races were contested.

In Precinct 1, Billy Ross beat both his challengers combined vote total. Ross got 91 votes to Randall Presswood's 40 and William Luchini's 22.

•Precinct 2: John Greco beat Charles Reed, 131-113.

•7: Ken Davis topped Charles Luehmann, 110-81.

•9: Judy Merritt beat Buddy O'Brian, 133-111.

The following were unopposed in Nameoki: Precinct 3, Joseph Garcia; 4, Bill Ellis; 5, Helen Hawkins; 6, Jim Noeth; 8, Pauline Briggs; 10, Betty Johnson; 11, Stephen Isenbarg; and 12, Louis Zezzoff.

Two Chouteau Township races were closely contested.

In Precinct 4, Carlos Jordan beat Jimmie Hendrix by one vote, 114-113.

In Chouteau 6, Tim Knott got 83 votes; Robert Morris, 73; and James Greer Jr., 50.

Candidates in other Chouteau precincts, and all Venice Township precincts were unopposed.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Antenuptial agreements, which are known as prenuptial agreements in other states, have been a topic of interest in recent weeks because of the Donald Trump case. An antenuptial agreement in Illinois should be in writing in order to be enforceable, and there must be a full disclosure of assets by each of the parties before entering into the agreement.

What types of people want an antenuptial agreement? Generally speaking, young couples just starting out and people who have never accumulated anything in life would have no interest in such a contract. In many cases, however, couples entering into such an agreement have adult children by prior marriages and want their respective properties to pass to these children in the event of a divorce, rather than to each other.

In one recent Illinois case, a young woman's husband died and left her a substantial amount of insurance. She later fell in love with another man and decided to marry him. She wanted an antenuptial agreement to ensure that if the second marriage didn't work out, she would still have the insurance money to educate and raise her children. Her fiancé agreed to sign the antenuptial agreement, and a full disclosure of her assets was made to him.

In another case, a couple in their seventies decided to marry. Each had accumulated substantial holdings. The woman was a widow and had received life insurance proceeds at the time of the death of her first husband. The man was a widower and had been a successful businessman. In a case such as this, an antenuptial agreement makes sense to protect the respective assets of each of the parties.

It is generally recommended that each of the parties seek independent legal advice in these matters. If the agreement provides for a disproportionate division of the assets, the Court will carefully consider whether the man and woman had separate attorneys and whether a full disclosure of their assets was made. If both of these requirements are met, and if there was no fraud at the time the agreement was entered into, then generally speaking the antenuptial agreement will be valid.

Good, bad library news

Granite City voters on Tuesday created a library district separate from the city government, and authorized those living outside the city limits to join the new district. Unfortunately, the non-city residents rejected annexation by a narrow margin, 641 yes to 664 no.

Although the negative decision can be considered bad news, there is much good news. Families in the outlying area of Nameoki and Chouteau townships took the proposal seriously, and nearly a majority voted favorably.

It would have cost them an added tax, but they weighed this against the existing non-resident fee and also took into account the important and comprehensive services provided by the Granite City Public Library.

There remains a chance that a court might allow some of the contiguous unincorporated precincts to be legally added to the district depending on how they voted. That would be an appropriate next step.

In addition, the close outcome appears to justify another try at some future election.

Bring on the baseball

Americans, all-forgiving that we are, welcomed baseball back this week after 32 days of torrid drought. Of all the world-shattering news on Monday, what was the one thing we all remember today? Not East Germany's vote. Not problems in Lithuania. But the end to the spring training lockout.

And what's the one thing we'll all forget by June 1? The same. Although we've been battered and bruised by the sport we love, we'll still pay our dues, buy our beer and go back for the hot dogs again and again.

We've seen big business at work during the last couple of months. We didn't like it. We complained. We accused owners of being misers and players of being greedy. Together they broke every trust known to sport and fan. Yet, when the news of the dispute's end came at daybreak Monday, things cheered.

So what did we get for our month-long headache? Let's analyze just one part of the new contract, the biggest obstacle of which was arbitration. It has been decided that 17 percent of the players will have two to three years service who have spent at least 86 days on the roster in the previous season will be eligible for arbitration. You can see why it took so long to arrive at that answer.

What you will be able to better understand, however, will be the cost of tickets. Last year it cost $20 a person to park and buy a ticket, beer, hot dog and cheap souvenir. Expect $30 in 1990. That's the price we must pay to watch the sport we love.

Quinn will enliven race

Quid City and Madison County voters reacted as predicted in Tuesday's primary election, although Daniel Stack ran well and carried Granite City in his losing effort for a Democratic nomination as circuit judge.

Democrats chose two incumbent state legislators, three incumbent judges, four incumbent countywide officials and five current local County Board members to run in the November general election. Republicans did not run for most offices here and in the county but will field a strong state ticket this fall, headed by Secretary of State Jim Edgar for governor.

Illinois Democrats also have an attractive ticket and see their gubernatorial nominee, Attorney General Neil H. Harris, as a potential winner. They sought to keep primary rivalry at a minimum but Patrick Quinn, not endorsed by party leaders, captured the state treasurer nomination.

A lively November race between Quinn and Republican Greg Baise seems assured.

The census you'll never see

Every man, woman and child, and a few pets in between, will be targeted next week when U.S. Census forms are received in the mail.

The government wants to know: Who are you? Where are you? What are you? And they want to know if you have flush toilets in your home.

In fact, the government wants to find out all it can about the people it is supposed to serve, in order to serve them better. It is a noble effort that this writer wholeheartedly endorses.

And it all takes just a few minutes time to complete.

However, this reporter has frequently wondered why the Census people don't go just a step farther than they do. Get really nit-picky if you catch the drift.

After all, asking about race, religion and occupation is fine, but why not ask the questions that most people talk about?

If I were compiling the questions for the form it would look a little different:

"How many children do you have? How many children do you claim? How many children would you have if you liked children?"

"Does your home have flush toilets? Are these toilets in bathrooms that are normally occupied by one of the above children? Do you have a take-a-number system for use of these facilities? If not, why not?"

"Of course, there would be questions specifically for certain geographical locations. Like Granite City, for instance:

"Do you have any problems in your neighborhood? Does the mayor of your town eat dirt? Are you impervious to X-ray?"

"There would also be some typical demographic questions, but they would leave little to debate, especially in this county. Describe your political persuasion."

Dennis Grubaugh

Are you: A) Democrat; B) Staunch Democrat; or C) Independent Democrat? Then there would be queries that address our consumer orientation. When you shop do you buy A) The name brand; B) The brand that's on sale; or C) Plain labels only?

Asking that a step further: How much money do you owe to the local utility company? Are you reading this by candlelight? Bonus question: What is your personal feeling about the Internal Revenue Service?

My census form would also want to know a lot about living circumstances. Is your home: A) Bigger than a block; B) Smaller than a block; C) A box.

Personality would be important, too. You've heard of the term N.R.A. Would you define this as A) National Rifle Association; B) National Radical Alliance; or C) No Republicans Allowed.

My favorite question, however, would be saved for the end. If you could describe yourself, what person would you say you most relate to? A) Donald Trump; B) Ivana Trump; or C) Carly Howard?

One has to wonder why the federal government would ever want any of this information, but I know when I get my form that I will dutifully fill in the blanks and circle the options. Whether I'll write the truth I haven't yet decided.

Coach Yates' son offers tribute to his father

To the editor:

I am writing about the recent dismissal of head football coach Ron Yates.

This was a very big loss to the program at Granite City. I know what I am talking about because I have lived with the man for 18 years. He has been my father, teacher, friend and coach.

I was a senior on the team this year. I can remember years back when my dad looked forward to coaching his sons. He did get to coach half of us.

My younger brother, Damon, will be a junior next year. I encourage him to play even harder, with the best of luck.

This decision greatly affected my father and realizing what the program had lost, I wanted to express my views and thoughts. I am not writing just because he is my father; more so, as a person who saw the beginning and, unfortunately, the ending.

He has played, coached and lived the game. There was not one single day he wasn't doing something for the football program and the athletes.

Every time I'd walk into the living room he'd be reading a book on football, talking to others about it, or with coaches developing plays and strategies.

Every weekend was the same: scouting different teams, watching films, participating in football camps, developing the weight program, or getting ahead of big-time players to come to Granite City and talk football.

The team liked the interest he had in doing things for us. Coach always had some kind of "Warrior clothing" to give the players. He had several competitions and awards involving weight training. Also, we had the choice when it came to game uniforms.

On the field, he knew when to work and when to have fun. Coach always played the best man, giving everyone an opportunity. He was fair.

If one showed he could help the team, he played. If one showed he had the desire, he played. On the other hand, if one showed he did not want to help the team, missed practice, or let his grades slide, he wouldn't see much playing time.

As a player, one gets to know his coach. We always knew that he would give us all a chance to prove ourselves. He didn't involve himself in politics. It's too bad more people don't follow this act in Granite City.

Coach tried his very best to arouse interest in the athletes from colleges. But if a college or coach doesn't show interest first, it is awful tough to try to convince them. There is only so much a coach can do. Countless numbers of letters were sent all around trying to gain interest. Many did receive interest and they are playing at college now.

To the people responsible for this action, (they know who they are; we all know, too), please answer this simple question. How can you judge the quality of a program on the won-loss record? Isn't it obvious that the talent Bob Shannon works with and the talent Ron Yates worked with is not that same?

Making a decision on a man's life without even attending a single Warrior game sounds funny to me. Reasons irrelevant to the benefit of the athletes and the program should never even be considered.

In this case, I think they were considered. Anyone who attended our games this year or in the previous five years saw the effort and intensity we played with.

We always gave it our best shot with what we had. I seriously doubt that the football program in Granite City will ever see a man more determined and dedicated to his team.

Finally, in my opinion, the one who was replaced was the wrong one. But now I know dad speaks the truth when he tells me life is not fair.

Without a doubt, another group of people should be the ones replaced. So let's remember this at the next school board elections. I want to wish the best of luck to the new coach and all of the Warrior gridders.

Venice alderman explains his gambling position

To the editor:

Thank God for freedom of speech. On March 15, the Venice City Council met and citizens had a chance to come and see and speak their opinions.

Citizens, continue to come to Council meetings and see your elected officials represent you. You elected us and we are accountable to you. We are servants to the citizens of Venice.

Most of you know how the Council meeting turned out. I was out of town due to a death.

The mayor read a letter from a man from Granite City to the Council and the citizens of Venice. Nobody's name was mentioned but John Henry Williams in the letter concerning riverboat gambling. The man who wrote it was William Dalton.

I care less what anyone from outside of Venice may say or do. I am responsible to the citizens of Venice.

Mr. Dalton criticized me for information he received that is wrong. As a minister, I have a duty to correct what is wrong concerning gambling.

The state passed riverboat gambling, not me or the City Council. I voted for a boat to stop in Venice, if one was available. I personally don't gamble.

I cannot overrule state or city law. State laws say lottery is legal, and that is gambling. At some churches they are playing bingo, and anytime you play for money, that's gambling.

I am supposed to obey the laws of the land, regardless of who I am. Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God that which is God's.

I can't stop people from playing bingo or lottery; why should I try to stop riverboat gambling? In my position, I will always be criticized regardless of what I do. This is the reason I was elected by the citizens in Ward 2. They know who I am, and they know I try to do whatever is right.

Not all my friends are Christians; some of my closest friends are non-Christians. Should I stop associating with them because they live not by the word of God? Jesus told me to love, regardless of what people feel or what they say or do to me. I love serving people regardless of who they are.

I appreciate the writer's concern for Venice, but I am not mistaken. Granite City has enough problems for him to worry about. Before he tries to clean our town and straighten us out, or tell me about my position as a Christian concerning riverboat gambling, he should take a look at his own town.

I just wish he would have asked me before he wrote that letter to the mayor or the Council. I am my own man. He cannot or will not ever dictate to me about my position, or how I vote. I only have to please God and the citizens of Venice. Pray for me, and I'll pray for you.

JOHN HENRY WILLIAMS

Change the 'charge' system

To the editor:

Both the Democratic and Republican parties are in error on moral and ethical grounds in charging candidates money to run for public office.

Running for office should be determined by higher values than who puts money into party coffers. Enthusiasm, integrity, honesty, justice, etc., should be the qualifications, not how much money a person contributes.

An honest election process has been changed into a gambling game of ante up or don't get into our party. How disgusting, and it is a national disgrace.

Man aids 2 whose car caught fire

To the editor:

This is written to a young man that we believe deserves public recognition.

On Saturday, my husband and I were driving along Route 3 when a young fellow, passing motioned for us to stop. He then ran to our car and told us to get out, because our car was on fire.

He then drove us to Novotny's car dealership, where an employee called the fire department. Our car was destroyed, but we were not injured — thanks to the young man.

In the confusion, we didn't get his name. We are very grateful for his concern for our safety. MRS. STAN (ANNE) LAPINSKI Madison

Having wheels

Just having a vehicle is important enough. But a survey shows both guys and girls care about the kind of vehicle they and others drive.

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

The relationship between American high school students and cars has been immortalized in films and television countless times in the past 40 years. From the smash TV show Happy Days set in the 1950s to George Lucas' classic American Graffiti set in the 1960s to the 1990s hit Forrest Gump's Day Off, kids and cars have gone together like french fries and ketchup.

The classic cars coveted by teens of yesteryear are still remembered fondly today, including that classic of all classics, the Mustang.

But what kinds of cars do high school students drive these days? And what kind would they drive if they could?

A recent survey of 110 Granite City High School students shows that while many still covet the fastest and sportiest, others are more interested in modern amenities like compact disc players.

When Detroit was the world mecca of car manufacturers, all of the hottest cars were American. Now, however, the top choices include Germany's BMW, Italy's Lamborghini, and some of Japan's top sellers, such as the Mazda Miata or Toyota Celica sports coupe among the still popular Thunderbirds, Mustangs, Corvettes and Trans Ams.

And then there was the guy who listed his dream car as a 1976 Ford Pinto.

Another named a Volkswagen Bug with yellow and black polka dots. The latter writer, when asked in the next question if she thought she'd ever own her dream car, replied, "No, (because) it's not safe."

There's no accounting for taste. At least half of the students responding to the survey reported owning cars that are older than they are, but many also own cars from very recent model years as well.

Students were asked what they would change about the cars they have. Suggestions on the survey form included new paint, trim, stereo system, accessories, souped-up engine or fancy wheels.

"All of the above," wrote Tim Grubbs, owner of a 1971 Chevrolet Nova.

Grubbs was among those who listed the Lamborghini as his dream car.

Michael Harper said his dream car is a 1990 Corvette. He said he expects to own the car one day.

"With a little luck, I will. Lotto happens every Saturday," Harper said. Students were also asked if having a car is a good idea for high school students and if some students become spoiled if their parents buy them a car.

Of course, those who reported having paid for their own cars agreed that such students are spoiled, while most of those whose parents paid for their cars and those who said they do not own a car but hope to receive one as a graduation present said they weren't spoiled.

"A car is a great idea for high school students," responded Lisa Niemeyer. "It gives (us) a sense of freedom when things become oppressive."

One diplomat had more altruistic ideas: "It's a great idea for high school students to have their own car because then they don't have to ask other people for rides," she said. The same girl, who didn't sign her survey form, also reported that she'd probably never own the car of her dreams, a red Ferrari, "unless I marry a rich guy or something."

When asked if there was anything he'd like to add to the survey about high school students and cars, Trans Am owner Chris Mance replied, "We should have a drag racing team at the school."

Mance also cited the Ferrari as his dream car and, when asked if he expected to own one, said emphatically, "Yes. I will be rich!"

Many students reported owning 1970s gas guzzlers such as Monte Carlos and other old eight-cylinder models long ago abandoned by their parents' generation. But many also own modern family-type cars like the Chevy Cavalier, while others own pickup trucks and four-wheel drive vehicles like Blazers and Jeeps.

Those who have new cars own everything from Sunbirds to Stanzaes.

In short, most students appear to drive whatever was the first car in the right price range that they came upon once they were allowed to buy one.

But among those who hope to own something bigger, better, sportier or classier some day, not all are relying on the lottery.

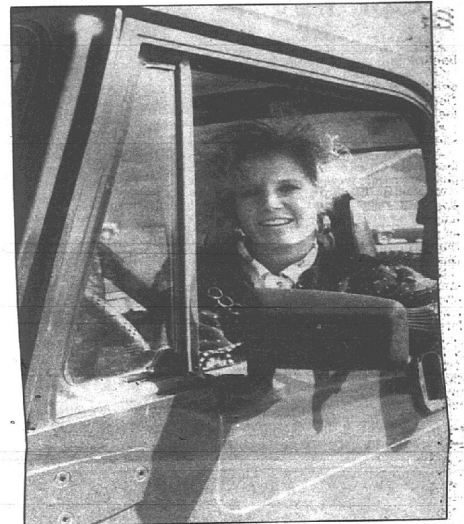

"Yeah, I'll own my dream car one day. I'm going to college so I'll be able to afford it," said one.

Wish it were that easy.

Who's interested, who's not

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

Are girls as interested as guys in cars?

That question was posed to 110 Granite City High School students as part of a survey on teens and cars.

"Girls like 'em for looks; guys, for how they run," said one male student.

"All they like are big hunks and not neat cars that some guys have worked hard to get. They don't appreciate that," said Ron Field.

"Many don't know or care how (cars) work," said John Jones.

"As long as they (run) girls don't care," agreed another.

But another boy disagreed with his peers.

"Girls aren't as interested in the engines, but they still like

"Sure, we like to buy, sell, fix up and drive nice cars as much as guys."

— Jennifer Simon

nice cars and do fix them up," said Doug Crites.

But one female student said girls aren't given enough credit.

"Girls are just as knowledgeable as guys and have very high tastes," she said.

Lisa Luca said girls know it matters to guys what kind of car a girl drives and "how nice it is."

But Terry Lueckert countered that girls judge guys by their cars, too.

"They'd rather go with someone with a nice car," he said.

Jennifer Simon said girls are every bit as interested as guys are in cars.

"Sure, we like to buy, sell, fix up and drive nice cars as much as guys," Simon said.

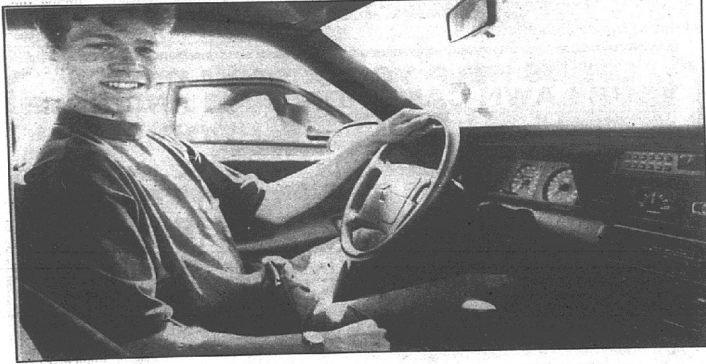

But most of the girls surveyed appeared to place most of their emphasis on getting places, while boys seemed more interested in the going.

Boys reported spending more time working on their cars and showing them off to their friends, while girls wrote more often of freer access to transportation as reasons for liking car ownership.

"We need to get places," was Kimberly Pawlak's simple explanation for why she and her friends own cars.

But Field, owner of a 1979 Camaro, issued a challenge to all comers:

"You wanna race?"

Graying citizens growing in number and in their impact on nation

Growing old is great, when you consider the alternative.

But it's not so great if you are sick or poor or sad. To avoid or resolve such problems, senior citizens are discussing a variety of tactics at meetings like one set for March 25-28 in Kansas City.

The theme of the Mid-America Congress on Aging is "New Roles in a Changing World."

AS LIFE SPANS GROW, as the numerous "baby boomers" now 30 to 45 years of age become "older," and as the nation reaches adulthood and middle age, the ranks of oldersters will increase dramatically — both the number and as a percentage of the population.

With the 17th annual Mid-America conference approaching, Helen Wingard says, "We face the reality of the 'graying of America.' The older population and those who strive to address its needs will be challenged to define new roles."

Wingard, of Des Plaines, Ill.,

heads the Congress on Aging, a membership organization serving Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas.

AS AN EXAMPLE of the issues facing elderly citizens, the first half-day will focus on seniors who have care responsibilities for relatives and friends older than them.

"Understand and deal with the value violation that occurs when one's feeling of what it is to be a 'good child' conflicts with one's ability to provide care."

"Learn the hard truth about the accessing of quality, affordable services, and some special strategies."

"Consider ethical and legal issues relevant to decision making when an older family member's judgment is questioned."

ADULT DAY CARE, a relatively new approach, is receiving strong emphasis in Missouri and will be reviewed at the conference. How does it change the roles of clients, care givers and day-care staffs?

Now that a catastrophic health care law has been enacted and repealed, that topic will be revived. Conference will evaluate needs, possible answers and steps to be taken by legislators and others.

Retirement planning will be studied, to help employers learn how to communicate the available benefits, and to help people deal with lifestyle changes and society's attitude toward older workers and retirees.

THE FAMILY SYSTEM itself ages when individuals grow old. Among the changes:

"Aging of the care giver pool and a decrease in the potential pool of care givers.

"Changing power relationships among family members."

"Changing friendship patterns and ties to non-blood members as family."

"Changing economic relationships and responsibilities within families."

"The rise of the 'matrix' family."

TWO YEARS OF RESEARCH at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh on "care givers and the workplace" will be analyzed.

What about women as employees and as care givers to older adults — the dual role and its impact on career advancement and job security?

Another session will spotlight high school students and college students as an untapped wealth of present and future caring volunteers.

Elder abuse will be discussed along with efforts to gain greater national and state political support for strengthened abuse reporting and remedial action. One goal: more training and technical aid for protective service professionals.

THE "RIGHT TO DIE" is a closely-watched subject. For the first time, the U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to rule on this issue. Its finding in the Nancy Cruzan case is expected by July.

Adequate nutrition for the aged will get attention, along with dysphagia — the management of swallowing problems.

Boston is one of 20 sites of a national project, Elders Living at Home, aimed at keeping elders independent in the community. A talk will focus on the program's innovative temporary housing component, which provides housing and support services to displaced elders while caseworkers assist them in finding suitable permanent housing.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN, generally speaking, but what about the men who reach advanced age?

Health, retirement, work and widowhood have been well researched; less studied are father-son relationships, friendship patterns, neighborhood satisfaction and personal control issues.

Guardianships, portrayal of older people in the media, long-term grief support, working with "difficult" adults, senior employment services, respite care volunteers.

"LIVING WILLS," medication management, teaching nursing students not to believe the stereotypes depicting elders as dependent, senile, irritable, etc.

You name it, and there's a seminar on it.

The challenges of aging obviously are numerous, and the coping methods to be suggested in Kansas City form an impressive list.

After reading the conference materials, it is easy to conclude that better communication — between seniors and the rest of the people — could rid us of many myths and contribute mightily to improvements and solutions.

at Grace Baptist

Terry Blackwood will appear in concert at Grace Baptist Church, 2600 Edwards St., on Sunday, March 25. He will be performing in both the morning service which starts at 10:30 and at the evening service at 7.

A musical artist of substance, Blackwood's impressive musical career includes two years with The Stamps Quartet, nine years as lead singer with The Imperials, and nine years as a partner with Sherman Andrus in Andrus, Blackwood and Co.

He is the son of Doyle Blackwood, co-founder of the world-famous Blackwood Brothers quartet, and was raised on the harmonies of traditional Southern Gospel music.

As half of the Andrus, Blackwood and Co. team, Blackwood continued to help transform the face of contemporary Christian music. With daring musical offerings, such as the innovative "Jesus, You're So Wonderful," and the uncompromising musical quality offered on each of their LPs, Blackwood and Andrus have made an indelible mark on the Christian music industry.

Philippians 4:13... "I can do all things through Christ."

Conquer yourself and all other enemies: will fall before you. Be positive and be firm. Resist the devil and he will flee from you.

Learn the fundamentals of salvation. Understand what God has done for you. When we are rooted and grounded in the faith, we know we have nothing to fear. If God be for us, who can be against us?

Always try to remember that good works do no cause salvation, but they are the fruit of salvation. And you can do all things through Christ.

Today.

Act provides fraud protection

If you buy something on credit and the goods are defective, you may be able to use the Fair Credit Billing Act to help you deal with the merchant.

The purchase must be over $50, made within your home state or within 100 miles of your home address.

First, contact the merchant directly and try to resolve the problem. If you are unsuccessful, you can pay the card company only a percentage of the bill. Remember to notify the card company of the situation and explain why you are holding part of the payment.

If your credit cards are missing, report the loss immediately to the lending company. You are not responsible for unauthorized charges on your cards after you notify the company.

The Truth and Lending Act limits your liability on unauthorized charges. The most you will be liable for is $50, but it can be less.

Reporting missing credit cards will be easy if you keep a copy of all credit cards and account numbers, along with the addresses, and phone numbers of the credit card companies.

Keep a copy at home and it's a good idea to take a copy with you when you travel.

It was voted to send $50 to Nature Institute, an organization that has begun a prairie restoration across from Gordon Moore Park. Previously the Hemerocallis Society planted daylilies at the entrance to the prairie.

The next meeting will be May 4 and will be an auction of companion plants such as Hostas brought by members.

Those who won prizes at the meeting were Agnes Freeman, Dorothy Bourisaw, Dorothy English, Kathleen Ash and Pat Hinrichs.

Planning for the future, there will be a Garden Tour of two gardens, the garden of Nina Dix and Pat Storm on July 1. The Display Show chairman is Doris Karnes with the show in July.

The refreshment committee consisted of Pat Hinrichs, Kathleen Ash, Mary Lane, Nina Dix and Ruth Jensen.

Labor Council honors Davis, Branz

BELLEVILLE — Dorothy Branz and Buddy W. Davis were the top award winners at the 23rd annual labor awards banquet sponsored by the Southwestern Illinois Central Labor Council.

Branz, a 30-year member of St. Louis Typographical Union Local 8, is a member of the Granite City Press-Record/Journal composing room staff (Mississippi Valley Composition Inc. Granite City Division).

Davis is director of United Steelworkers of America District 34, which includes locals at Granite City area industries.

He has headed the five-state district since 1977, when he was promoted from director of the Steelworkers' Granite City sub-district.

Davis was chosen by the Labor Council as "labor man of the year." Dorothy Branz was named the "outstanding female trade unionist."

She has served as chairman of her union chapel and was the first woman in the history of the International Typographical Union to be elected as president of a typographical and Mailers Conference; her presidency of the Illinois Conference dates back to 1974. She also helped found the Coalition of Labor Union Women.

The awards they received had been, in previous years, presented by predecessor organizations.

The Southwestern Illinois Central Labor Council's president is Jack Coyne. Harold A. Wright served as the evening's master of ceremonies.

Winner of the distinguished service award was William Stogdon of the United Food and Commercial Workers. The George Meany Scouting award went to Carl Denton of the National Association of Government Employees, affiliated with the Service Employees International Union. Community service recognition was given to an agency, the Boys Club of East St. Louis, represented by Ed Jucevics, and an individual, John Lee, executive director of Hospice of Southern Illinois.

The Central Labor Council honored Belleville Carpenters Local 433 on its 100th anniversary and the city of Belleville on its 175th year.

IP gains training recognition for Clinton staff's excellence

CLINTON — The National Academy for Nuclear Training has presented Illinois Power with a plaque recognizing it as a full member of the academy, the highest honor for training in the nuclear industry.

At the Clinton Power Station, Walter J. Coakley, Nant executive director, made the presentation to J. Stephen Perry, IP vice president for nuclear programs.

"The employees at Clinton have put a tremendous amount of effort into training," Coakley said. "Their dedication and commitment to excellence is clear to the Academy."

Standards for training in the nuclear industry are exceptionally high, especially for reactor operators at Clinton. To earn a reactor operator's license, employees must:

- Complete at least two years of college study in engineering or have equivalent nuclear experience.
- Master a stringent curriculum covering 12 to 14 months.
- Serve for at least three years in other areas of the plant.

- Complete 12 to 14 months of classroom instruction, hands-on training and work on a multi-million-dollar control room simulator; and
- Pass a week-long test administered by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, including a written exam, an operating skills test on the simulator and a walk-through of the plant discussing how individual systems operate.

Once licensed, operators continue to dedicate about one-sixth of their time to training.

Diet rules being met here

By Ken Moser

GRANITE CITY — Because recent media attention may have given the impression all very-low-calorie diets are alike and dangerous to one's health, officials at St. Elizabeth Medical Center are seeking to "set the record straight."

The Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) recently published guidelines recommending that very-low-calorie diets be used only by those who are severely overweight, and that they be supervised by specially-trained physicians.

The Optifast Program at SEMC meets both the new guidelines and those of the AMA, as well as criteria established by the American Dietetic Association.

"Optifast has a rigorous admission policy and only enrolls patients who are severely overweight," said Robert Blankenship, M.D., medical director of the Optifast Program at SEMC.

"Severely overweight is defined as any one is at least 30 percent or 50 pounds above their ideal body weight."

The authors of the JAMA article — Thomas A. Wadden, Ph.D., Theodore B. Van Itallie, M.D., and George L. Blackburn, M.D., Ph.D. — said they are alarmed by the possible consumption of very-low-calorie diets by persons who are not severely overweight, or who do not receive appropriate medical supervision.

They also find particular fault with medical practitioners who dispense very-low-calorie diets without the training or the resources to deliver comprehensive care.

Appropriate medical supervision by properly trained physicians is needed throughout treatment, they wrote, to ensure that any complications that may arise are quickly identified and readily managed.

Blankenship said patients in the Optifast Program are examined weekly by a physician who has received special training in obesity treatment, and they also have laboratory work done every other week.

"Additionally, patients must attend weekly group sessions," he said.

Blankenship said that the most successful patients are "those who closely adhere to the Optifast Program's regimen, especially the maintenance component. Our patients are highly motivated and confident that the comprehensive approach can be effective for them where other single-focused methods have failed."

Optifast is currently offered at 550 hospitals and medical centers throughout the country and has benefited more than a half-million patients. At SEMC, almost 500 people have completed the program.

"Optifast utilizes a comprehensive, multidisciplinary approach to treatment over a long period of time," said Dr. Eliseo Figueroa, SEMC's Optifast physician.

Today's very-low-calorie diets are "unquestionably safer" than their liquid protein predecessors, leading obesity experts agree, but only when caution and prudence are exercised by the medical community and the public.

"Very-low-calorie diets are associated with only minor complications when administered to carefully selected patients by physicians trained in their use," according to the authors of the JAMA article.

The duration of Optifast's supplemented fasting and the maintenance phase also falls within the article's guidelines. The fasting phase should be 12 to 16 weeks long and the maintenance phase a minimum of three to four months of weekly sessions where changes in behavior and eating habits are learned.

"Dieters consume 400 to 800 calories daily through a high-protein powder for 12 weeks, in most cases, before gradually eating normal food again," Dr. Blankenship said of the Optifast Program.

"The maintenance phase is an important component of the program because it reinforces the learned behaviors. It's a lifelong program of continued support, available to all participants."

For further information on SEMC's Obesity Treatment Program, persons may call 798-3939.

Free Optifast meeting set

GRANITE CITY — A free Optifast orientation session is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 28, in the gymnasium at the Wellness Center, 2103 Iowa St.

Optifast combines medical supervision, a modified fast, behavioral modification, nutrition education group sessions and exercise. It is described as both safe and effective.

"The program is designed for those interested in changing their lifestyle so they can have a healthier life. Both day and evening classes are available," said Jim Chiappa, program director.

"Optifast participants can lose weight safely, under the supervision of a doctor and a specially trained staff of nurses and other medical professionals. You can lose weight for life, through this program. It's not easy. It's work, but the results are worth it."

"Obesity not only slows you down and keeps you from enjoying a lot of summer fun, it can also shorten your life. It is one of the leading factors in heart disease and many other life-threatening conditions."

Meet the Banks Family.

In the months ahead you'll find you have a lot in common.

The Banks family is probably a lot like your family. When they all get together, everybody enjoys visiting with everyone else. But individually, they're at different stages of their lives, with very different needs.

For instance, Maggie and Mort are newlyweds, just starting out, while Milt and Penny Banks are now empty-nesters. Then there's Grandpa Ira and Grandma Fanny Mae who have just retired.

Even though each has very different financial needs, they're all happy customers of Magna. That's because we have taken the time to carefully discuss their own specific needs with each family. So they now better understand exactly where they are headed and how we can help them get there.

If it's been a while since you had a serious talk with your banker, maybe you're not banking at the right bank.

Stegemeier confident in Warriors' abilities

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Bob Stegemeier felt the Warrior baseball team was a little underrated last year. After a strong finish in 1989, Granite City could turn some heads this year.

Although Stegemeier hasn't decided yet for sure, senior righthander Brian Harshany will likely throw the first pitch of the 1990 season at high noon Saturday when the Warriors face Washington (Ill.) in a double-header at Varsity Field. Like any coach, Stegemeier isn't going overboard in his excitement, but he seems confident of his team's ability on the eve of the new season.

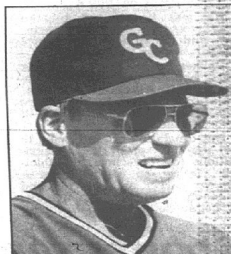

"I like this club," he said. "It's a pretty good bunch of athletes. A lot of them have had success in soccer, and that shows that someone is able to handle success. And the attitude has been good so far."

Attitude. That's something Stegemeier is hoping to see improved this year. The Warriors lost a lot of talent from the 1989 squad which went 23-14 and tied for second place in the Southwestern Conference. But the coach found last year's group of seniors often moody and hard to motivate. Stegemeier thinks he has a more receptive bunch this time around.

"We knew we had a pretty good junior class coming up," he said. "Last year's seniors were hard to get through to sometimes. But I don't want to take anything away from the talent they had. Guys like (Chris) Bartling, (Kurt) Hodges, (Kory) Burton, (Chris) Ryan, (Keith) Matlock and (Mark) Begando were a big part of our success."

Hodges led the team with a .359 average and five home runs while Bartling hit .355 and caught everything in center field. Begando was the top winner with a 6-3 mark and a 2.24 ERA. But although the Warriors lost a lot of talent, they return a solid group of players, most of whom have significant varsity experience.

Along the way, of course, is senior catcher Joe Wallace (see related story), bound for Oklahoma State or perhaps professional baseball. On those rare occasions Wallace isn't catching, junior Stacy Jackson will fill in.

Bob Stegemeier
...confident

or possibly junior Dan Partney, who will supply some pop in his bat.

Harshany and fellow senior righthander Tom Senecyn figure to be the top two pitchers. Junior Dave Boley was being counted on heavily by Stegemeier, but he has had pain in his elbow for several months and is out indefinitely.

Boley came up late last April with a large group of sophomores when much of the varsity was suspended for five games following a drinking incident. He was outstanding in a 4-1 win over Centralia, then had a great summer as the top pitcher for the Granite City Optimists Junior Legion team.

"I've been around baseball quite a while, and when someone has pain in his elbow for four months you've got to think it's not going to clear up real soon," said Stegemeier. "We were counting on Boley very much."

Harshany pitched only 1½ innings last year and was 1-0. But he had plenty of pitching experience prior to that and was 2-2 in Senior Legion. Senecyn was 3-3 with a 3.56 ERA last year. He's big and strong and can throw hard.

"Brian's a little ahead of Senecyn right now," said Stegemeier. "But Butch (Senecyn) has developed a split-finger pitch which should really help him. Coach (Gus) Lignoul has been working with him and he's made a lot of progress."

Round robin tourney off 1990 schedule

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — The Warrior baseball schedule doesn't look all that much different than in the past. But there is one significant change.

Granite City will not host a round robin tournament as it has for the past several years. But Warrior coach Bob Stegemeier said it has little to do with what happened last year. Most of the varsity squad was suspended for five games after a drinking party at one of the players' houses during the tournament. Players from some of the other teams in the tournament got into hot water themselves because of that.

"That didn't have much to do with it this year," said Stegemeier. "We were going to have Edwardsville in the tournament this year, but they cancelled and we decided not to have it."

"We were going to plan some changes, though. If we have the tournament again, we won't have players from the other teams staying at our players' houses. It will be up to the teams to get a motel."

In place of the round robin tournament, the Warriors will play at Hillsboro on April 20, then host Dupu in a double-header at home on April 21. Dupu should be one of the better small school teams in the area. The Tigers compete in the rugged Cahokia Conference, which produced five Illinois Class A champions in the 1980s.

"I don't know much about Hillsboro," said Stegemeier. "But I'm sure Dupu is tough. They always wanted to play us years ago when they were good. Then their program went down and they weren't as anxious to play."

Granite City has 13 home dates and 20 home games. Seven of the Warriors' nine scheduled double-headers are at home. There will be one night game, May 9 at home against Francis Howell North (7:30). The South-

Southwestern Conference game. In double-headers vs. SMC opponents, only first game counts in conference standings.

Western Conference opener is April 5 at Alton.
"I expect the (Southwestern) conference to be a dogfight again," said Stegemeier. "Belleville West lost a lot of good players, but they had good talent in the sophomore tournament last year. And I learned long ago never to feel sorry for Belleville East. They're always tough by the end of the year. Alton is improving, as they showed by beating us twice last year. East St. Louis might be a little down this year, but they still have a real good player in (Jerry) Creer. And Collinsville has a new coach (Steve McFall).

"This should be a pretty good year for our area. We have three kids going to major colleges from around here."

Warrior catcher Joe Wallace has committed to Oklahoma State, Edwardsville pitcher Tom Price is going to Notre Dame and Trenton Wesclin outfielder Brent Brede is going to Arkansas. Those three along with Belleville West's Joe Daubach should be the top players in the area.

Joltin' Joe

Warrior catcher Wallace established as area's top professional prospect

By Dave Whaley
Executive sports editor

GRANITE CITY — Joe Wallace hasn't been the Warriors' starting catcher forever. It just seems like it.

As the 1987 Warriors emerged as one of the top teams in the area, coach Bob Stegemeier made a bold move. He promoted Wallace — then just a skinny freshman — to the starting position behind the plate at mid-season. Wallace handled the catching duties from then on out as the Warriors finished 20-0 and missed going to the state tournament by one game.

The Warriors have yet to return to those heights, but Wallace's star has continued to rise in the ensuing three years. Last week, the 6-1, 180-pounder made a verbal commitment to play college baseball next year at Oklahoma State. The Cowboys have one of the finest programs in the land, and the fact they recruited Wallace without ever having seen him first-hand speaks volumes for the reputation he has gained.

"Some people feel like I'm playing favorites with Joe," said Stegemeier. "But here's one of the best college baseball programs in the country recruiting him just on the word of major league scouts. So there must be some other people who think he's pretty good."

He's pretty good, all right. With his senior year about to start, Wallace is a .322 career hitter with nine home runs and 61 RBIs in 23 at-bats, with a .522 slugging percentage.

As well as Wallace has hit the ball, it's his development into a top-flight defensive catcher which has really caught the eye.

Opposing baserunners usually take one look at Wallace's arm before deciding to postpone base-stealing plans until another day. And after struggling to block low pitches as a sophomore, he became one of the best last year.

"I concentrated a lot more on my catching last year," said Wallace. "I got kind of a bad rap on passed balls my sophomore year. But coach Stegemeier was just trying to help me by giving me a lot. It made me better."

Wallace and his stepfather, Nate Bailey, spent countless hours in the annex gym at the high school working on blocking baseballs.

"I threw until my arm couldn't do it any more," said Bailey. "Stegemeier would come in and ask me if I was trying to kill him. We'd be out there without a mat or anything."

"Joe wasn't getting down on every pitch as a sophomore and he was trying to catch the ball instead of blocking it," said Stegemeier. "And it was an adjustment for him after catching some great pitchers as a freshman. Darin (Hendrickson) and Scott (LeVault) were always around the plate. But he worked on it and really became a great catcher last year. He learned not to overthrow to second base. He has a strong enough arm where he can just throw naturally and that will be enough."

Wallace was timed at 1.7 seconds in getting the ball from home to second base at a Texas Rangers tryout camp last summer.

He was a shortstop until he tried catching just before he started junior high school.

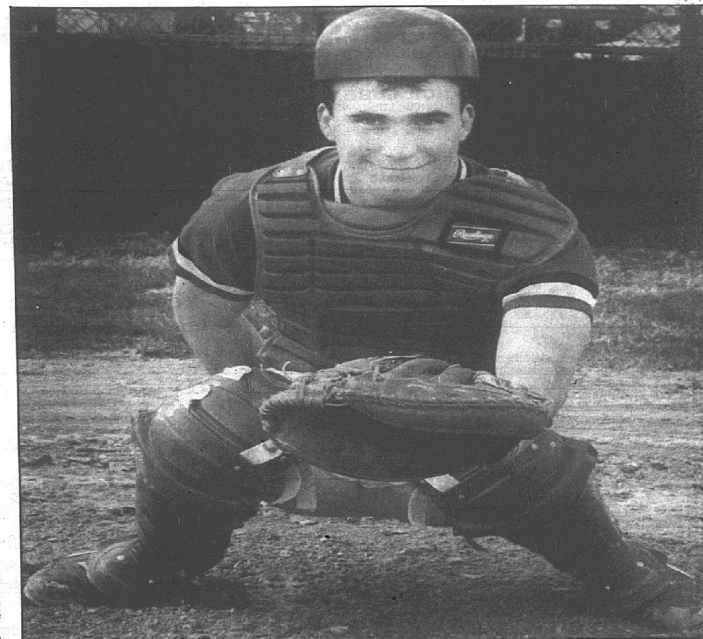

"It was something I always wanted to do," he said. "People told me that was the quickest way to get to the majors."

And that's been a dream for as long as he can remember. As long as anybody could remember, Joe Wallace has had baseball on his mind.

"He always loved baseball," said his mother, Debbie Bailey. "When the other kids were out playing, Joe would be inside watching a baseball game on TV."

Wallace made his high school debut under what could have been difficult circumstances. The 1987 Warriors were a talented, senior-laden team with a state title on its mind. Wallace was promoted to the varsity at the expense of senior catcher Dave Bamper, who later quit the team. Wallace was apprehensive at first at how the veterans would take to a 15-year-old kid playing one of the most important positions.

"I was scared to death when I came up," he said. "But that was a great group of guys. They made me feel welcome right away. About a week after I came up I was in the locker room when (left fielder) Todd Adamitis came up to me. Todd was real good friends with Bamper. I had all my stuff over with the sophomore team, but Todd said, 'Give me your stuff. You're with us now.' That really made me feel good."

Wallace is still close with that group of players.

"Those guys were over at our house all the time," said Debbie

Bailey. "We always made them feel welcome. The first time they were here they were guests. After that they were on their own."

•Wallace

Wallace didn't get to bat much with that team. He batted only .222 in 18 at-bats in 1987, but that team had dangerous hitters like

"Joe is probably the No. 1 player in the whole area this year as far as seniors. He should definitely go in the top 10 rounds. He has good work habits and the right build for a catcher."

—Jim Greenwald
Chicago Cubs scout

Tim Patterson who weren't even regulars.

"Patterson loved having Joe on the team," said Nate Bailey. "When Joe came up to get to hit a lot more."

"They just made me feel welcome," Wallace said, remembering Deacon (Hendrickson) and everybody else was razzing me about getting my first hit. But I got a bases-loaded double at Alton and they all came out to congratulate me."

Since then, Wallace has steadily climbed the ladder. He hit .325 with five home runs and 31 RBIs as a sophomore. Last year he was a first-team all-conference player as well as the all-area catcher. He also played two years of varsity football (quarterback and split end) and two years of varsity basketball as well as three summers of American Legion baseball and last year in the Saugat Fall Baseball League.

After a couple years of American Legion ball, Wallace decided to hit the road last summer. He played for the Lexington Dixie traveling team in Kentucky, following in the footsteps of Todd Hinterser, one of the seniors on that 1987 Warrior team. Hinterser played for Lexington in 1988.

In 22 games and 57 at-bats, Wallace hit .439 with two homers, 15 RBIs and a .632 slugging percentage. But when the team manager wouldn't let him come home on weekends, Wallace returned to Granite City after only four weeks and played the rest of the summer for Post 113.

"I'm still glad I went there," he said. "The coach was a junior college coach and I really learned a lot down there. That experience helped me."

That was the best team I've ever seen," said Nate Bailey. "And Joe got to call pitches for the first time down there and he liked it."

Wallace is setting his sights on a big senior year. Having the college recruiting episode come to an end should be a big help.

"I'm glad it's over," he said. "There were coaches calling me all the time. Southwest Missouri was nice. I hated telling them no. But I had a good time at Oklahoma State. I got along with the players I met."

Other schools like Illinois and Mississippi State showed interest before dropping out.

"But Joe never heard from the one school he wanted to, Arizona State," said his mother, who's saved just about every thing related to Wallace's career. "We stopped counting at 48 (schools who contacted him)."

Now if Wallace is drafted by the pros in June he'll have a decision to make. If he signs a pro contract he will lose his college eligibility.

"There's no reason to think he won't have a good year," said Stegemeier. "Joe stays relaxed and doesn't put much pressure on himself. It's an important year as far as him getting drafted. You hear all kinds of things about where he might go in the draft. Twenty of the 26 teams have contacted me about Joe. About all I know for sure is that Jim Greenwald (an area scout for the Chicago Cubs) says he's definitely on the Cubs' draft list."

"All indications are he'll be drafted," said Greenwald. "He has the potential to be a good pro hitter someday, but it's his ability as a defensive catcher that has drawn everyone's attention. When he picked that player off second base in the regionals last year from a squatting position, that showed what kind of ability he has. Joe is probably the No. 1 player in the whole area this year as far as seniors."

"I don't know how high he will be drafted. The fact that he's picked a college might keep some teams from drafting him so high. But he should definitely go in the top 10 rounds. He has good work habits and the right build for a catcher."

If Wallace doesn't go pro this summer, he said he's content to play another summer of American Legion ball for Ralph Burnett and the Triplets, although he wouldn't rule out playing some more amateur ball (such as the Mon-Clair League).

Stegemeier said Wallace compares favorably in all areas to Daren DeFew, who came for Stegemeier at Granite City North in the early '80s and had a brief pro career after a fine college career at SIUE.

"Joe has a better arm, although Daren could really get rid of the ball in a hurry," said Stegemeier. "And Joe has more pop in his bat right now than Daren did in high school. Daren didn't really crunch the ball until he went to college."

Coach Stegemeier has done nothing but praise for Wallace. "It's always been a dream of mine to play pro baseball. I still have to work on improving a lot of things this year. But I think I'll have a good season. I'm ready."

"There's no reason to think he won't have a good year. Joe stays relaxed and doesn't put pressure on himself."

—Stegemeier

•Baseball

After those two, juniors Ryan Reeves and Mike Nordstrom will pitch, as will fellow juniors Chris Hill, Tom Materni and Steve Sturdivant. There are no left-handed pitchers this year.

"And we're still thinking of using (seniors) Chad Lignoul and Rich Schardan," said Stegemeier. "Todd Brooks is another possibility. He's a senior, but he hasn't pitched since his freshman year."

Senior Tony Sternberg (.265 in 1989), the only left-handed hitter on the roster, will battle for the first base job along with Partney and Nordstrom. Senior Chris Mance (.316) is a candidate at second base along with juniors Jim McKeehan and Jeff Stephens.

"McKeehan came up and did a good job last year and Jeff is smart and a good competitor," said Stegemeier. "Harshany could also play some second."

Schardan (.196), who has missed much of pre-season practice with a bad cough which was feared to be pneumonia, is first in line for the shortstop job, although junior Jay Robertson could challenge there. Robertson's brother Mike is in the Cardinal farm system.

"Jay is a tremendous athlete," said Stegemeier. "We know he can do the job defensively, but Richie will have the first shot at the job."

One of the pleasant surprises last year was Mike Mueller, a senior, at third base. Mueller took advantage of the suspensions and won the job. He finished with a .338 average and drove in 20 runs in only 65 at-bats while playing well defensively. Senior Jeff Thompson and junior Chris Milton are behind Mueller at the hot corner.

The outfield is up for grabs after the graduation of Hodgson, Bartling and Matlock. Lignoul should win one of the spots, as should Reeves. Reeves or Lignoul could follow in the footsteps of Tim Hogan and Bartling as outstanding defensive center fielders. Harshany, a .332 hitter last year, also could play in the outfield, as will Thompson and junior Eric Lewis.

We're two deep at every infield spot, so we could afford to move somebody with a hot bat to the outfield," said Stegemeier. "Even Mueller could see some time out there."

Stegemeier is far from set on a lineup, but he said Partney's net has to be in the lineup somewhere along with Harshany's. Probably the only starting spot etched in stone is Wallace behind the plate.

"We could generate some power this year," Stegemeier said. "If you look at Joe Harshany, Mueller, Schardan and Partney, there's some good hitters. They could hit for some power at our field, although Mueller is more of a line drive hitter. If we can get some offense out of Lignoul (.233 last year) it would really help. He's been one of our most consistent players so far in practice. And it will help him to get away from the shortstop position."

Our speed is decent (Bartling was the only Warrick double digit figures with 13 stolen bases in 1989). Chad is probably the best runner we have, but the only spot where I see us being real slow is first base. We just have to work on smart baserunning. "We have a shot at winning 20 games. I would be happy with that. Maybe I won't be happy with that later. I like what I've seen so far."

NOTES: Gus Lignoul moves up to the varsity assistant job, replacing Jack Parker. Don Harris is now the sophomore coach, with Jerry McKeehan remaining the freshman coach.

Frøhardt hears 'Mr. Lincoln'

Frøhardt School recently presented a program of R. Frederick Klein, "A Message from Mr. Lincoln."

In the presentation, he showed the humor, wit and wisdom of the nation's 16th president.

Klein frequently portrays Abraham Lincoln in a one-man performance. A resident of Springfield, he spends two hours making up for the role of President Lincoln. He peppers his presentation with an expression of Lincoln's thoughts, values and feelings on any given topic of the 19th century. Klein breaks through conventional theatrics to create the illusion that the great political leader is actually speaking to an 1860's crowd. Klein as Abraham Lincoln made Illinois' greatest statesman come alive to the students.

The presentation was given before all students, kindergarten through sixth grade. This is one of a series of In-Building Field Trips at Frøhardt School which are paid for by the Frøhardt PTA. All arrangements for booking Klein were made through the Madison County Arts Council.

The financial-services firm Edward D. Jones & Co. has introduced a new, easy-to-read monthly statement to the more than 1 million individual investors it serves nationwide.

According to Dennis Nobbe, the firm's Granite City investment representative, "Response to the new version of our statement has, thus far, been overwhelmingly positive."

"The new statement is, specifically, designed to answer four questions investors and others revealed were important in determining where they are financially," Nobbe said. "These questions are: What do I have? What did I earn? How did I make it? And, how are my dollars invested?" The four sections of the statement correspond to these questions.

Home warranties offered

GRANITE CITY — Century-21 Dove Realty Inc. as a new member of Homeowners Marketing Services Inc. now offers home warranties for the protection of both buyers and sellers.

Ruth Andrews, co-owner/broker of Century-21 Dove Realty, said, "After seeing the results of a recent Gallup poll which showed 79 percent of home buyers selected home warranties as the number one additional feature they would like to have, we concluded we must provide this service to the buying public."

Homeowner warranty plans cover air conditioning and heating systems, electrical, plumbing systems, and most major appliances found in a home.

Claims are handled promptly, usually within 24 hours, and all the repair work is accomplished by reputable local service companies. All the home owner has to do is call a toll-free number, she said.

"We want our customers to feel confident that they are protected from major repair bills when they occupy their new home," Andrews said.

Century-21 Dove Realty also has a plan for sellers that protects the seller during the listing period. The coverage is cost-free as long as the seller agrees to pay for a one-year warranty plan for the buyer at closing.

"Warranted homes sell up to 50 percent faster and at a slightly higher price," Andrews said, citing recent Business Week magazine findings. "We want to do everything we can to help sell homes quickly."

HMS is the nation's leading supplier of support services to real estate brokers. Based in Hollywood, Fla., it is a membership association with more than 18,000 member-broker locations in 46 states.

Annual report
IP's plan for recovery outlined

DECATUR — Illinois Power Company says that 1989 was a financial disaster, but the company has an ambitious plan to restore its economic health, according to the utility's newly released annual report.

The company reported a loss of $4.34 per common share in 1989, compared to earnings of $2.14 in 1988. The loss, coupled with the suspension of the common stock dividend, made 1989 the worst fiscal year in the company's 66-year history.

Operations remained stable, however, with revenues and operating expenses near 1988 levels.

The report outlines management's strategy for financial recovery and for improving customer satisfaction. The recovery program includes:

•Appealing a 1989 Illinois Commerce Commission rate order in court.

•Filing a rate case in July 1989 for recovery of Clinton Power Station construction costs and for operating expense increases.

•Carefully managing operating expenses.

•Increasing economic development activity.

In response to what it called the unfavorable rate order in 1989, the company filed a new case to recover construction costs for Clinton — determined to be fully needed by the ICC staff — and higher operating costs.

By itself, however, a favorable ICC decision would not allow immediate reinstatement of a common stock dividend.

"We realize it would be easy to let financial concerns overshadow all that we do. But the future demands a greater vision. That is why we have reshaped the company's mission — focusing on financial recovery for the short term and a commitment to high-quality service for the long term," said Illinois Power Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Wendell J. Kelley and President Larry D. Haab in their letter to the company's stockholders.

During 1989, the company trimmed its payroll and consolidated offices to reduce annual operating costs by about $30 million.

Planned cost-containment efforts include introduction of a sophisticated financial management system and continued emphasis on efficiency and quality/productivity programs.

The company also plans to develop a centralized, 24-hour-a-day customer service center to improve efficiency and the quality of service.

The annual report discusses the Bush

Administration's proposed clean air legislation, which could dramatically increase the company's expenses in the 1990s.

Last year, Illinois Power, the United Mine Workers and others formed the Washington-based Coalition for Acid Rain Equity to keep lawmakers informed on how the proposed clean air legislation could impact Illinois and the Midwest.

IP increased its economic development efforts, the report noted, by opening the Center for Site Selection in Decatur, a computer-based system to permit research on business locations throughout the utility's territory. The Center is the only one of its kind in the Midwest. In 1989, new employers and expansion produced more than 2,200 new jobs in the company's service area.

At the close of the letter to shareholders, Kelley and Haab emphasized the company's immediate objectives: "to restore the company's financial health, to reinstate the common stock dividend, and to rededicate ourselves to customer satisfaction." They concluded, "We will continue to find innovative ways to make this utility the best it can be."
